A Business Change.
Jesse and W. P. George, proprietors of the White House restaurant on State street, yesterday purchased the St. Elmo restaurant from George F. Smith and will hereafter conduct the same.
By fair dealing, courteous treatment of patrons, and splendid meal service, Mrs. Geo. F. Smith, who conducted the St. Elmo, built up a good custom. The restaurant was established on a small scale, and was gradually enlarged as the increase in trade demanded, until it ranked among the best popular priced restaurants on the coast.

The new proprietors, Messrs. Jesse and W. P. George are experienced restaurant men and need no introduction to the Salem public, having been engaged in feeding the hungry in this city for a number of years. They will conduct the St. Elmo as a restaurant and were open for business today. They will maintain the reputation of the house and will give a faultless service. The new proprietors invite and will doubtless receive a liberal patronage from the public.

Justice Court.
In Justice Johnson's court this afternoon the civil case of John D. Shaw vs. A. B. Buren was on trial. Plaintiff Shaw sued defendant, Buren for the sum of $20.50, alleged to be due with interest from Sept. 18, 1898. The answer of the defendant alleges that this money was by agreement, held by defendant to pay the back taxes on certain property purchased of plaintiff; that the amount was not sufficient to pay said taxes, but defendant had to dig up $9.00 additional; and defendant asks judgment against plaintiff for $9.00.

DROWNED.

Henry Girardin Loses His Life in the Willamette.
Was Working on the Boom at Sawmill and Fell From a Log.

A sad drowning accident occurred at the log boom of the sawmill this morning about 10 o'clock by which Henry Girardin, aged about 18, lost his life. The young man was working on the boom, bringing logs to the slip. He was pushing a log toward the slip, having his pike pole fast in another log, and in pulling it clear he lost his balance and fell into the water. He started to swim to the boom pole, but evidently became confused or took a cramp in the intensely cold water.

F. J. Rupp saw the accident and immediately gave the alarm and the mill crew hurried out to render assistance, but the young man had already sunk for the last time in about 12 feet of water.

Search was made at once with pike poles and improvised grappling hooks, but 28 minutes had elapsed from the time the boy fell in until he was brought to the surface. The body was taken ashore and an effort was made to revive him, but Dr. J. A. Richardson, who eventually arrived, pronounced it useless, and the body was taken to the undertaker's rooms.

About half an hour before, the young man had slipped on a log and fallen into the water, wetting him above the waist, and it is probably that he was chilled by this, making him helpless on falling in the second time.

During the excitement of search for the body two other men of the mill crew fell in, but got out without much difficulty. The young man had only been at work since Wednesday morning. He was not experienced in the work but said that he was a good swimmer.

He had neglected to put calks in his shoes, simply driving some large-headed tacks in the soles, which did not prevent his feet from slipping.

The young man is the son of John Girardin and his parents live about two miles southeast of the reform school. There are said to be two sisters but no brother of the boy. Word was sent to the parents but nothing has been heard from them as we go to press, and the body lies at Coronor Clough's establishment.

Ingenuous.
The workmen engaged in excavating for the foundation of the new water wheels at the Salem water works, have put in operation a labor-saving device for carrying off the dirt dug out, which works like a charm. There is a good fall to the creek and a long wooden trough has been built, down which a stream of water is turned. Into this the gravel and rocks are shoveled and the water carries them out of the way with the greatest celerity.

Good Wheat.
New wheat is coming to the flouring mills at the rate of about 2000 bushels per day. The grain is nearly all in good condition, though there is a small share which runs light, showing some damage from the rains.

Light and Power Co.
Manager Anson of the Salem Light and Traction Co. says the lighting plant at the asylum is being extended. A force of extra men are also employed on the Commercial street switch.

Snailpox.
A reliable report comes to THE JOURNAL that there is a well-developed case of snailpox in the country about half way between Macleay and Shaw station.

In Portland the past month 185 dogs, 7 horses and 1 cow were impounded.

The East Oregonian says there is a presidential tinge to the Dewey boom.

Portland's one-horse exposition is little more than a few displays of dry goods and other wares.

Why wouldn't a president without a platform be an improvement all platform and no president?

The merchandise displays—and there's nothing else—at the Portland exposition, are not as good as those in Salem show windows.

Hurrah for the Lane county boy veterans of the Philippines! They have organized, C. C. Kaufman, chairman, F. E. Taylor, sec'y.

The Baker City Democrat regrets that Baker county's mines are not represented at the Portland exposition. They are probably as well represented as anything else outside the Portland peanut stands.

C. H. Markham, the popular general passenger and freight agent of the S. P. R. R., was in the city today. He has done much to eradicate prejudice against his company since taking his present position.—Eugene Guard.

Portlanders believe in reciprocity—a lot of them came up to the state fair on free passes to the show, and on a free special car, and now they want all Salem to come down there, pay their fare and buy a ticket besides.

A reception was tendered Rev. M. C. Wire and family last evening at the M. E. parsonage, enjoyed by a large number of members of the church and other friends, all glad of the opportunity to express their appreciation of the return of Rev. Wire to the Albany charge, where he and his wife have served so faithfully and well during the past three years.—Albany Democrat.

Homer Davenport is the highest priced artist in the world and he is a native Oregonian. Recently the New York Journal on which Davenport draws pictures of current events political, in causing a general reduction of expenses asked Davenport if he would stand a reduction of $50 a week. Davenport got mad and instead of being reduced $50 it was raised $50, so that he now receives only $15,000 a year. That is, some one has a genius for lying.

BORN.

GOODIN.—At the family home, on Cottage street, Salem, Oregon, Tuesday, October 3, 1899, to Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Goodin, a daughter.

DIED.

HUNTER.—At the family home, in North Salem, at 4 p. m., October 4, 1899, of cancer, Mrs. Adeline Hunter, wife of G. W. Hunter, aged 68 years, 1 month and 28 days.

The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Ronald McKillop, of the Baptist church, at the residence, corner of Third and Division streets, North Salem, at 2 p. m., Friday, October 6, and burial will take place in the Old Fellow's cemetery.

Mrs. Hunter was born at Hornellville, Pa., and has lived in Salem since February, 1895, having come to Oregon from Nebraska, where the family had resided about nine years. She has been suffering from a cancerous tumor on the neck for over a year, and for the last two months has been quite low and her death was not unexpected. She leaves surviving her husband, G. W. Hunter, a son, G. M. Hunter, and a daughter, Mrs. Allie Poe, all of Salem.
